

Departmental Transformation

Presentation to the Mackenzie River Basin Board (MRBB).

November 21, 2018

Overview:

1. Creation of Crown-Indigenous Relations & Northern Affairs Canada (CIRNAC) and Indigenous Services Canada (ISC).
2. Mandates of three Ministers.
3. Engagement on Departmental Transformation.
4. Key CIRNAC priorities.
 - Recognition and Implementation of Rights Framework (RRF).
 - Arctic & Northern Policy Framework.

1. Creation of two new Federal Departments...

- In August 2017, Prime Minister announced the creation of two new departments and the dissolution of Indigenous and Northern Affairs Canada (INAC), committing to create a renewed relationship with First Nations, Métis and Inuit based on rights, respect, cooperation and partnership.
- Based on 1996 Royal Commission on Aboriginal Peoples recommendation:
“...An Aboriginal Relations Department Act and an Indian and Inuit Services Department Act, to set up two departments to replace the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development - one to implement the new relationship with Aboriginal nations, the second to administer continuing services for groups that have not yet opted for self-government.”
- In December 2017, Indigenous Services Canada (ISC) was created by joining the various service-delivery sectors from INAC with the First Nations and Inuit Health Branch (FNIHB) from Health Canada.
- In May 2018, the creation of the new Crown-Indigenous Relations & Northern Affairs Canada (CIRNAC) was announced, followed by the announcement of a new Minister of Northern Affairs in July 2018.
- The two new Departments will require new enabling legislation to replace the old 1985 DIAND Act (work is underway).

2. With Three Ministers...

- There are now three Ministers leading the two new Departments:
 - Carolyn Bennett, Minister of Crown-Indigenous Relations.
 - Dominic LeBlanc, Minister of Intergovernmental and Northern Affairs and Internal Trade.
 - Jane Philpott, Minister of Indigenous Services.
- The mandate letters of Minister Bennett and Minister Philpott were issued by the Prime Minister in October 2017.
- Minister LeBlanc's mandate letter was issued in August 2018.

...and three Ministerial mandates:

Minister Bennett (CIRNAC)

- Lead the renewal of nation-to-nation, Inuit-Crown, and gov't-to-gov't relationships with Indigenous peoples, including a Recognition of Rights Framework.
- Lead strategy to include Indigenous representation in Fed-Prov-Terr dialogues.
- Establish a new fiscal relationship.
- Lead work on the review of laws relating to Indigenous peoples.
- Implement UNDRIP and the TRC calls to action.
- Lead National Inquiry into MMIWG.

Minister LeBlanc (CIRNAC)

- Advance work on the new Arctic Policy Framework.
- Expand the Nutrition North program.
- Advance Nunavut devolution.
- Lead Northern climate change adaptation.
- Support work on a Recognition of Rights Framework, especially with regards to intergovernmental relations.

Minister Philpott (ISC)

- Deliver quality distinction-based services to Indigenous peoples, including: infrastructure and housing, safe drinking water, emergency management, community wellness, health care and education.
- Improve and better measure service delivery and accountability to Indigenous peoples.
- Implement improved responses to provision of child and family services and Jordan's Principle.
- Develop co-management models that bring control and jurisdiction back to Indigenous communities.

3. Engagement on Departmental Transformation:

Minister Bennett engaging on recognition and implementation of rights

(including shape of new departments)

Minister Philpott
engaging on ISC service strategy (including shape of ISC)

Internal public service engagement on creation of new departments

ISC public servants engaging with external partners

4. Key CIRNAC Initiatives:

(i) Recognition and Implementation of Indigenous Rights Framework (RIIRF):

- The co-development of a “Recognition of Rights Framework” with First Nation, Inuit and Metis partners was announced by the Prime Minister in February 2018.
- New legislation and policies will be introduced that will make the recognition and implementation of s.35 rights the basis for all relations between Indigenous peoples and the Federal Government.
- Will include new measures to support the re-building of Indigenous nations and governments, advance self-determination, and the inherent right to self-government.
- Will build upon the implementation of: United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP); Truth & Reconciliation Commission’s 94 Calls to Action; Federal Review of Laws; Ten Principles respecting the Canada’s Relationship with Indigenous Peoples; and the new Recognition of Rights and Self-Determination (Exploratory) Tables.
- Led by Minister Bennett, who continues to engage extensively with Indigenous partners, and external stakeholders across Canada.

4. Key CIRNAC Initiatives (con't):

Arctic and Northern Policy Framework:

- In December 2016, the Prime Minister announced the co-development with Indigenous, Provincial and Territorial partners of a new “Arctic Policy Framework” to replace Canada’s Northern Strategy (2009) and Statement on Canada’s Arctic Foreign Policy (2010).
- Informed by Ministerial Special Representative Mary Simon’s Shared Arctic Leadership Model, released in March 2017.
- The goal is to identify and build a long-term vision for Canada’s North and Arctic Region to the year 2030, ensuring: self-determination and reconciliation with Indigenous peoples; resilient and healthy residents and ecosystems; strengthened infrastructure; strong and diverse economies; knowledge-based decision-making; and a rules-based international circumpolar Arctic that is safe, secure and well-defended.
- Takes a whole-of-government approach, and covers Yukon, Northwest Territories, Nunavut, Nunangat, Nanatsiguat, Nunavik, as well as northern Manitoba.
- Led by Minister LeBlanc, the final framework report is under development, following an extensive engagement process in 2017-2018.

QUESTIONS?

